J.P. Morgan directly, or through any J.P. Morgan affiliate, has or may develop one or more business relationships with a fund or Manager Participant including, but not limited to, acting as prime broker, broker, dealer or clearing agent. The fees, commissions and other revenues that J.P. Morgan earns or expects to earn through such business relationships may be a significant factor in J.P. Morgan’s determination as to the Manager Participants. In addition, J.P. Morgan, operating through various affiliates, forms and manages its own hedge funds (“Affiliated Managers”), and may in the capacity of Manager Participant feature their funds in the CIG Program. Furthermore, J.P. Morgan, through various affiliates, including but not limited to Affiliated Managers, may invest in hedge funds that are clients of J.P. Morgan, and may participate in the CIG Program as an Investor Participant. Through such business relationships, J.P. Morgan may possess certain information about such funds or managers, including, potentially the fact that a manager's or fund's relationship with J.P. Morgan has been terminated. With respect to such or any other type of information, whether or not material, J.P. Morgan has no responsibility to, and may not, disclose that information to you. The foregoing business relationships may conflict with any relationship that J.P. Morgan may have or will have with you including one with an advisory or discretionary component to it ("Advisory Relationship"). Any information or material accompanying this disclaimer shall not be deemed under any circumstances to be provided to you as part of such Advisory Relationship. In addition, unless expressly agreed to the contrary, J.P. Morgan shall be under no obligation as a result of such Advisory Relationship to provide you with any advice or recommendations in connection with the Information or any other material relating to any particular fund or manager referenced therein. You should not construe silence by J.P. Morgan at any time as approval or endorsement of any statements made by a fund or its manager.

The Information is provided for informational purposes only and may not be disclosed to any other party or used for any other purpose whatsoever without the prior consent of J.P. Morgan. The Information does not constitute and shall not be construed as constituting or be deemed to constitute: (i) a research product of the J.P. Morgan research department; or (ii) an invitation to treat in respect of, an offer or a solicitation of an offer to buy or sell any securities or constitute advice to buy or sell any security. The Information may be subject to change and neither the Capital Introduction Group nor J.P. Morgan has any duty to update the Information. In the United States, the Information is intended solely for institutions that are "accredited investors" (as defined by the U.S. Securities Act of 1933) and "qualified purchasers" (as defined in U.S. Investment Company Act of 1940). In the United Kingdom, the Information is intended solely for persons that are "investment professionals" for the purposes of Article 14 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Promotion of Collective Investment Schemes) (Exemptions) Order 2001 (the "CIS Order") or a "high net worth company or unincorporated association" for the purposes of Article 22 of the CIS Order. In other jurisdictions, the Information is intended solely for institutions qualifying under equivalent standards under the laws of the jurisdictions of their residence.

The funds and securities that may be discussed in the Information have not been registered or qualified with, nor approved or disapproved by, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, nor has any regulatory authority passed upon the accuracy or adequacy of the Information that has been or will be provided in connection with the CIG Program.

The Information has been prepared without taking account of knowledge, experience, objectives, financial situation or needs of individual investors. An investment in the products detailed in the Information carries potential risks and fees which are described in the relevant disclosure documents issued by the issuer of the product. An investor should, before deciding whether to invest in a fund, consider the appropriateness of the fund, having regard to the relevant disclosure documents and the investor's knowledge, experience, objectives, financial situation and needs. An investment in a hedge fund is speculative and involves a high degree of risk, which each investor must carefully consider. Returns generated from an investment in a hedge fund may not adequately compensate investors for the business and financial risks assumed. An investor in hedge funds could lose all or a substantial amount of his or her investment. While hedge funds are subject to market risks common to other types of investments, including market volatility, hedge funds employ certain trading techniques, such as the use of leveraging and other speculative investment practices that may increase the risk of investment loss. Other risks associated with hedge fund investments include, but are not limited to, the fact that hedge funds:

- can be highly illiquid;
- are not required to provide periodic pricing or valuation information to investors;
- may involve complex tax structures and delays in distributing important tax information;
- are not subject to the same regulatory requirements as mutual funds;
- often charge higher fees and the high fees may offset the fund's trading profits;
- may have a limited operating history;
- can have performance that is volatile;
- may have a fund manager who has total trading authority over the fund and the use of a single adviser applying generally similar trading programs could mean a lack of diversification, and consequentially, higher risk;
- may not have a secondary market for an investor's interest in the fund and none may be expected to develop;
- may have restrictions on transferring interests in the fund; and
- may affect a substantial portion of its trades on foreign exchanges.
