Basic Custody & Trust Services	Safekeeping, Administration, and Transactions: safekeeping – identifying on J.P. Morgan's custody systems that assets credited to a customer's account belong to the customer, or the trust where J.P. Morgan is the trustee, except as otherwise agreed upon. Administration – crediting the customer's account with principal and income proceeds on assets, net of any taxes withheld (principal and income processing). Obtaining and providing information concerning corporate actions from publicly available sources and subscription services to the customer (corporate action notification). Notifying the customer of any notices received by J.P. Morgan regarding settled securities class action litigation, upon which the customer may take their own action (basic securities litigation notification service). Monitoring information distributed to holders of assets about upcoming shareholder meetings, providing the customer, through third-party service provider Broadridge Securities Processing Solutions, Inc. ("Broadridge"), proxy services including, without limitation, providing the customer with all required communications, voting services, tabulation services, and shareholder validation services (proxy services); Ongoing maintenance of standard accounts including set-up and market entry (custody account administration). Transactions – processing client trade posting and settlement instructions, received either electronically or manually by J.P. Morgan. This includes trade settlement and support for unmatched and failing transactions. Note with regards to Trustee services: When J.P. Morgan acts as Trustee, the trust is the legal owner of the assets.	Direct	N/A	Safekeeping: J.P. Morgan generally charges either a flat fee, a charge per asset position, or a variable fee. Variable safekeeping charges will be calculated by J.P. Morgan at the end of the billing period using asset values on the last day of such billing period derived from data provided by J.P. Morgan's selected pricing sources in accordance with J.P. Morgan's pricing practices. Administration: Fees are applied as a flat fee, or per event (i.e. per vote submitted for proxy services, per principal or income amount credited for principal and income processing). Transactions: J.P. Morgan will charge either a flat fee or a variable fee. If variable, fees are applied to all asset transactions (including receives and delivers, both vs payment and free of payment), effected during the billing period. It is assumed that J.P. Morgan receives authorized instructions in an electronic format that enables straight-through processing when applicable. Trade instructions that require manual input or repair will incur additional surcharges. Morgan is a fiduciary under ERISA to the extent, if any, that J.P. Morgan's express responsibilities under the applicable agreement constitute it as a fiduciary under ERISA.
		Indirect	Broadridge Securities Processing Solutions, Inc.	J.P. Morgan has entered into a Master Service Provider Agreement with Broadridge pursuant to which, among other things, Broadridge provides proxy services to J.P. Morgan in exchange for service fees (the "Service Fees"). Broadridge, acting as a billing and collection agent on J.P. Morgan's behalf, also invoices the underlying issuers of securities for fees in respect of such proxy services (the "Reimbursement Fees"), up to the maximum amount permitted to be charged for proxy services pursuant to the rules of the NYSE or other applicable exchange organizations or regulatory authorities. In the event that the aggregate amount of the Reimbursement Fees collected by Broadridge from issuers is greater than the amount of the Service Fees, Broadridge remits the balance to J.P. Morgan annually. Conversely, in the event that the aggregate amount of the Reimbursement Fees collected by Broadridge from issuers is less than the amount of the Service Fees, J.P. Morgan remits the balance to Broadridge annually.	N/A	If applicable, check payable to J.P. Morgan from Broadridge.	No

Group Litigation Monitoring & Filing Services	This service supports the provision of notifications regarding Group Litigations to subscribing clients. This service is different from the Settled Securities Litigation service in that eligible investors must participate in the legal action or group litigation at the outset in order to benefit from any settlement. J.P. Morgan, in partnership with its' vendor, identifies legal actions (pre-judgment, pre-settlement) in various jurisdictions globally. J.P. Morgan, through its' vendor, will: obtain requisite paperwork from case organizers and will forward the same to subscribed clients, estimate preliminary eligibility, and provide data to customers. It is the client's responsibility to complete and execute the documentation and pay any relevant legal fees. The vendor tracks the case and the filing through its life cycle. This is a subscription-based service, governed by specific language in the client agreement. There is an annual monitoring fee. Subscribers also will be charged fees related to their filing. Separate fees may be required or assessed by the litigation organizer directly.	Direct	N/A	J.P. Morgan will charge either a flat fee or a variable fee. If variable, J.P. Tri-Party Custodial Arrangements in connection with Repurchase Agreements	In a repurchase agreement, the seller receives cash and sells securities which the buyer agrees to sell back to the seller at an agreed-upon price. Many sellers and buyers use a tri-party collateral arrangement, such as the Custodial Undertaking in Connection with Master Repurchase Agreement, rather than having a seller maintain custody of the securities or requiring the buyer to keep track of the collateral received, including whether sufficient eligible collateral has been delivered.	Indirect	Seller	The sellers that use J.P. Morgan to provide this service have negotiated the following fees: (i) a fee of 0.75-4.50 basis points ("bps") per annum on average across various markets on the collateral securities held, (ii) movement fee/settlement fee of $1-$25 per transaction across most major markets, paid when securities are delivered into or out of seller's account (excluding substitutions and allocations), and (iii) safekeeping fee of 0-3.0 bps on average across various markets on the securities held long within the seller's account. an (iv) $0-$25k one-time onboarding fee. The fees reflected above (except the one-time onboarding fee) are subject to a minimum fee amount as negotiated with the seller.	Fee Schedule	Direct debit or payment on invoice to seller per mutual agreement.	No
Tri-Party Custodial Arrangements in connection with Securities Lending Transactions	When borrowers in a securities lending transaction post securities as collateral, rather than cash, borrowers/lenders may use a tri-party collateral arrangement, such as the Custodial Undertaking in Connection with Master Securities Loan Agreement, rather than delivering the securities directly to the lender.	Indirect	Borrower	The borrowers that use J.P. Morgan to provide this service have negotiated the following fees: (i) a fee of 0.75-4.50 basis points ("bps") per annum on average across various markets on the collateral securities held, (ii) movement fee/settlement fee of $1-$25 per transaction across most major markets, paid when securities are delivered into or out of borrower's account (excluding substitutions and allocations), and (iii) safekeeping fee of 0-3.0 bps on average across various markets on the securities held long within the borrower's account and (iv) one-time onboarding fee of $0-$25k. The fees reflected above (except the one-time onboarding fee) are subject to a minimum fee amount as negotiated with the borrower. Derivatives Collateral Management	Provide collateral management services (as custodial collateral agent) to clients that undertake cleared and non-cleared derivatives transactions or similar trading activity requiring collateral margining activities (e.g. bilateral repurchase agreements, MSFTA). This includes the provision of the following services: account agreement management, margin call calculation and management, collateral eligibility testing, collateral safekeeping, collateral substitution, trade reconciliation, dispute resolution and reporting.	Direct	N/A	J.P. Morgan will charge either a flat fee or a variable fee. There is also a $0-$25k one-time onboarding fee. Please refer to your current Fee Schedule and any amendments for more information on applicable services and for specific rates and charges. You may request another copy of your Fee Schedule by contacting your J.P. Morgan Client Service Manager.	Fee Schedule	Direct debit or payment on invoice to client.	No
Tri-Party or Bilateral Custodial Control Accounts	Control accounts provide a means by which a Pledgor can post collateral consisting of cash and/or securities to a Secured Party while maintaining title over such collateral until an event of default occurs. Collateral is delivered/booked to a control account in the name of the Pledgor for the benefit of the Secured Party. In accordance with the legal agreement, the Secured Party exercises control over the account and instructs the Custodian in regards to the acceptance, return, and disposition of the collateral.	Direct / Indirect (based on whether Pledgor or Secured Party pays compensation pursuant to the terms of the Fee Schedule).	Pledgor or Secured Party (based on terms of Fee Schedule).	The Pledgor of collateral or the Secured Party that use J.P. Morgan to provide this service have negotiated the following fees: (i) a fee of 1.0-3.5 basis points ("bps") per annum on average across various markets on the collateral securities held, (ii) a fee of 0-3.5 basis points ("bps") per annum on average across various markets on cash held, (iii) a movement fee/settlement fee of $0-$25 per transaction across most major markets, paid when cash or securities are delivered into or out of seller's account, (iv) an annual fee per account ranging between $0 - $5,000, and if applicable (v) a safekeeping fee of 0-3.0 bps on average across various markets on the securities held long within the Pledgor's account, (vi) onboarding fees $0- $25k, (vii) an annual fee per cash DDA of $0-$1,600. The fees reflected above are typically subject to a minimum fee amount as negotiated with the Pledgor or Secured Party. Securities Lending Compensation	J.P. Morgan acts as an agent lender that facilitates the lending of client ("lender") securities to borrowers against either cash or non-cash collateral based upon lender preferences. If cash collateral is received, J.P. Morgan reinvests such cash in accordance with client guidelines.	Indirect	JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A.	Securities Lending Compensation has three components: Non-Cash Collateral Loans: when collateral posted by borrowers is in the form of non-cash assets, the borrower pays J.P. Morgan a mutually agreed fee. This fee is split between J.P. Morgan and the lender based upon the contractually agreed split as specified within the Securities Lending Agreement. Cash Collateral Loans: when collateral posted by borrowers is in the form of cash ("cash loans"), J.P. Morgan invests the cash received according to lender defined investment guidelines and returns the applicable rebate to the borrower. Income remaining (post the rebate paid to the borrower) is split between J.P. Morgan and the lender based upon the contractually agreed split, as specified within the Securities Lending Agreement. Cash Management Fee: In addition, clients may negotiate an investment management fee into their contract and this fee is retained by J.P. Morgan.	Securities Lending Agreement	N/A	For securities lending product users, J.P. Morgan acts in a fiduciary capacity for all cash re-investment related activities. In addition, J.P. Morgan also acts in a fiduciary capacity when it exercises discretion in the offering of securities loans on behalf of and for the benefit of lenders.
				Securities Lending Float Revenue: See description above for Cash Safekeeping. 				Various (see explanation in next column).	Fees received by other J.P. Morgan businesses: Settlement Fees: In addition to the tri-party fees discussed above, and regardless of whether the borrower posts cash or securities as collateral, borrowers that custody their securities at J.P. Morgan pay regular "receive and deliver" transaction settlement fees ($1 - $25, depending on liquidity and size of market) when securities are delivered to their account in connection with a borrowing or a return of a borrowing, regardless of whether they are borrowing from J.P. Morgan's securities lending program or any other securities lending program. The decision to borrow is made entirely by the applicable borrowers. These fees are for custody services provided to the borrowers and are unrelated to the securities lending program. Accordingly, the revenue split of securities lending income described elsewhere in this disclosure does not apply to these fees. Your securities lending agreement or securities lending reports will provide you with the names of the borrowers to your plan. Generally, 20 - 40% of these borrowers use J.P. Morgan to custody securities and receive and deliver borrowed securities. If you would like additional information, please contact your relationship manager. Plans may limit borrowers for any reason, including whether a borrower uses the bank for government securities custody and tri-party collateral agent services. 		Indirect	Various (see explanation in next column).	Cash Investment in Repurchase Agreements using Tri-Party Arrangement Compensation: In compliance with your guidelines, J.P. Morgan may invest the STIF in repurchase agreements. In a repurchase agreement, the counterparty receives cash and puts up securities as collateral. Virtually all repurchase agreement counterparties use a tri-party collateral arrangement rather than delivering the securities to the plan entering into the agreement. Two banks provide this service to the overwhelming majority of banks and broker-dealers; J.P. Morgan is one of those two banks. Repurchase agreement counterparties using this service have negotiated a fee arrangement of either up to $25 per transaction or an annual fee of up to 3 basis points on the securities so held. These fees are different from other fees because they are, in fact, tri-party collateral fees from the custody segment of our banking business and are retained by J.P. Morgan. Your reports will provide you with the names of the repurchase agreement counterparties to your plan. Generally, 20-40% of these counterparties use J.P. Morgan as tri-party collateral agent. If you would like additional information, including a full list of potential repurchase counterparties, please contact your relationship manager. Additional disclosure regarding these fees can be found in the letter provided to you specifically with respect to these fees related to securities lending investment of cash collateral. If you need another copy of that document, please contact your relationship manager. Whether repurchase agreement counterparty is a client of the tri-party collateral and custody business is not taken into account by J.P. Morgan as investment manager when making decisions on repurchase agreement counterparties. Plans may limit counterparties for any reason, including whether a borrower uses the bank for custody and tri-party collateral agent services. Cash Safekeeping (Float Revenue on Uninvested Cash)	Provide safekeeping for funds that may be held: (i) as un-invested cash (i.e. cash that is received after cut-off time for designated sweep vehicle or for which no sweep vehicle has been designated); (ii) with respect to failed securities transactions; or (iii) in demand deposit or other non-interest bearing accounts established for the payment of disbursements or benefits or that are otherwise maintained for similar purposes in administering the account. The float period for: (i) disbursements commences one to five business days after a check for the payment of such benefits or disbursements is mailed and ends on the date the check is presented for encashment; (ii) failed securities transactions commences on the contractual settlement date and ends on the date the transaction is settled or cancelled at the direction of the Investment Manager (or the Committee in the case of a Company-Directed Account, as applicable); and (iii) un-invested cash commences when such cash is received and ends on the date that such cash is invested pursuant to proper instructions.	Indirect	Various (see explanation in next column).	J.P. Morgan, its affiliates, and its subcustodians derive earnings (float) from the use of cash held on deposit. There is no specific rate at which such float accrues. J.P. Morgan employs such funds in a variety of financial instruments including, but not limited to, loans to J.P. Morgan's customers and investment securities. Any remaining funds are held in J.P. Morgan's account with the Federal Reserve Bank, where such funds earn interest at a rate determined from time to time by the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank System. With respect to non-US dollar accounts, where J.P. Morgan is a direct member of the local monetary system, J.P. Morgan may invest such funds in a variety of financial instruments or may leave such funds on deposit with the local central bank, where such funds earn interest in accordance with local market practice. Where the J.P. Morgan is not a direct member of the local system, funds are held at local subcustodian banks and, depending on the market in question, J.P. Morgan may earn interest at rates offered by such local subcustodian. Earnings Credit Rate (ECR)	Under the ECR program, eligible accounts holding un-invested cash will generate a credit (Earnings Credit) that can be used to reduce the amount of direct service fees the customer is required to pay J.P. Morgan. The amount of credit is based on a rate, the ECR, set periodically by J.P. Morgan after considering a range of factors, including, but not limited to: (i) the market rate environment, (ii) deposit insurance fees, (iii) relevant competitor pricing; and (iv) J.P. Morgan's demand for funds. On days during which the relevant account(s) end the day in a positive cash balance, J.P. Morgan will calculate the Earnings Credit using the following formula: closing cash balance on that business day x the ECR rate/ Number of days in the year. J.P. Morgan will apply the Earnings Credit, if any, towards the customer's custody fees. Depending on the account analysis platform, Earnings Credits may expire at the end of the billing cycle or at the end of a calendar year, unless otherwise explicitly and mutually agreed by the customer and J.P. Morgan. For more information see the applicable agreements and disclosures you received prior to electing ECR (and any amendments or notices you may receive thereafter). You may request a more detailed description of ECR, including current rates, from your J.P. Morgan Client Service Manager at any time.	Indirect	JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A.	J.P. Interest Bearing Account	The Interest Bearing Account provides participating clients with the ability to earn interest based on the available cash balances that are held in their applicable account(s). The rate of interest is set periodically by J.P. Morgan after considering a range of factors, including, but not limited to: (i) the market rate environment; (ii) deposit insurance fees, (iii) relevant competitor pricing; and (iv) J.P. Morgan's demand for funds. On days during which the interest bearing account(s) end the day in a positive cash balance, J.P. Overdraft Protection (Overdraft Fees)	The advance, by J.P. Morgan, of an amount equal to the amount of any overdraft in a customer's account if a debit to any currency in the customer's account results in a debit balance. If J.P. Morgan elects to make such an advance, it will be deemed a loan to the customer, payable on demand, bearing interest at the applicable rate charged by J.P. Morgan.	Direct	N/A	For U.S. based accounts, U.S. dollar overdrafts are currently charged at the Federal Funds Effective rate plus 2%. For non-U.S. based accounts there are 3 categories of overdraft charges. For specifically identified currencies in respect of which the overdraft rate is linked to an external benchmark, the overdraft rate is the external benchmark plus a fixed basis point amount. For specifically identified frequently traded currencies in respect of which an external benchmark is not used by J.P. Morgan, the overdraft rate is a flat number of basis points. For all other currencies, the overdraft rate is a flat number of basis points, subject to change depending on the rate offered by the local sub custodian bank that J.P. Morgan engages in such market. For a limited number of currencies that are not treasury managed or limited movement due to regulation, the overdraft rate is 0 basis points. A chart specifically identifying the rate charged for each currency is included in the current relevant compensation disclosure document. Information about trading venues, securities depositories and other platforms	J.P. Morgan, its affiliates, subcustodians or other subcontractors may have an ownership interest in the following entities: (i) trading venues, such as electronic communications networks; and/or (ii) securities depositories.	Indirect/Related Party	N/A	Ownership interests in various trading venues and securities depositories may increase in value based on business transacted through such entities. As a directed trustee or custodian, neither J.P. Morgan nor its subcustodians have any authority or responsibility to select the trading venue or securities depository. Trading venues are selected by the party directing the investment. Securities depositories are a function of the securities infrastructure of a particular jurisdiction and are not selected by J.P. Morgan or its subcustodians.	N/A	N/A	N/A
Gifts and Entertainment	J.P. Morgan's code of conduct and other gift related policies generally prohibit acceptance of any gifts, entertainment or other non-monetary compensation in connection with the services J.P. Morgan provides to any particular client, including any particular plan, or in return for any business of the firm. Exceptions may be made for certain nominal non-cash gifts to employees of less than $100 in value meeting certain criteria specified in the relevant code of conduct and policy. Acceptance of meals, refreshments, and entertainment in the course of a host- attended, business-related meeting or other occasion may be permitted in certain limited circumstances. Acceptance of travel or accommodation expenses are prohibited. The code of conduct and gift policies set conditions for each of these types of payments, and do not permit any gifts or entertainment unless it is clear that the gift-giving person is not trying to influence or reward the J.P. Morgan employee inappropriately in connection with any business decision or transaction and the gift is unsolicited. J.P. Morgan addresses conflicts of interest by ensuring that any such payments do not relate to any particular transaction or investment made by J.P. Morgan clients.	Indirect	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A	N/A
