Securities Lending Compensation	J.P. Morgan acts as an agent lender that facilitates the lending of client ("lender") securities to borrowers against either cash or non-cash collateral based upon lender preferences. If cash collateral is received, J.P. Morgan reinvests such cash in accordance with client guidelines.	Indirect	JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A.	Securities Lending Compensation has three components: Non-Cash Collateral Loans: when collateral posted by borrowers is in the form of non-cash assets, the borrower pays J.P. Morgan a mutually agreed fee. This fee is split between J.P. Morgan and the lender based upon the contractually agreed split as specified within the Securities Lending Agreement. Cash Collateral Loans: when collateral posted by borrowers is in the form of cash ("cash loans"), J.P. Morgan invests the cash received according to lender defined investment guidelines and returns the applicable rebate to the borrower. Income remaining (post the rebate paid to the borrower) is split between J.P. Morgan and the lender based upon the contractually agreed split, as specified within the Securities Lending Agreement. Cash Management Fee: In addition, clients may negotiate an investment management fee into their contract and this fee is retained by J.P. Morgan.	Securities Lending Agreement	N/A	For securities lending product users, J.P. Morgan acts in a fiduciary capacity for all cash re-investment related activities. In addition, J.P. Morgan also acts in a fiduciary capacity when it exercises discretion in the offering of securities loans on behalf of and for the benefit of lenders.

			Various (see explanation in next column).	Fees received by other J.P. Morgan businesses: Settlement Fees: In addition to the tri-party fees discussed above, and regardless of whether the borrower posts cash or securities as collateral, borrowers that custody their securities at J.P. Morgan pay regular "receive and deliver" transaction settlement fees ($1 - $25, depending on liquidity and size of market) when securities are delivered to their account in connection with a borrowing or a return of a borrowing, regardless of whether they are borrowing from J.P. Morgan's securities lending program or any other securities lending program. The decision to borrow is made entirely by the applicable borrowers. These fees are for custody services provided to the borrowers and are unrelated to the securities lending program. Accordingly, the revenue split of securities lending income described elsewhere in this disclosure does not apply to these fees. Your securities lending agreement or securities lending reports will provide you with the names of the borrowers to your plan. Generally, 20 - 40% of these borrowers use J.P. Morgan to custody securities and receive and deliver borrowed securities. If you would like additional information, please contact your relationship manager. Plans may limit borrowers for any reason, including whether a borrower uses the bank for government securities custody and tri-party collateral agent services.	Form 5500 Schedule C Service Provider Indirect Compensation Disclosure – Investor Services (as of most recent calendar year end for which J.P. Cash Safekeeping (Float Revenue on Uninvested Cash)	Provide safekeeping for funds that may be held: (i) as un-invested cash (i.e. cash that is received after cut-off time for designated sweep vehicle or for which no sweep vehicle has been designated); (ii) with respect to failed securities transactions; or (iii) in demand deposit or other non-interest bearing accounts established for the payment of disbursements or benefits or that are otherwise maintained for similar purposes in administering the account. The float period for: (i) disbursements commences one to five business days after a check for the payment of such benefits or disbursements is mailed and ends on the date the check is presented for encashment; (ii) failed securities transactions commences on the contractual settlement date and ends on the date the transaction is settled or cancelled at the direction of the Investment Manager (or the Committee in the case of a Company-Directed Account, as applicable); and (iii) un-invested cash commences when such cash is received and ends on the date that such cash is invested pursuant to proper instructions.	Indirect	Various (see explanation in next column).	J.P. Morgan, its affiliates, and its subcustodians derive earnings (float) from the use of cash held on deposit. There is no specific rate at which such float accrues. J.P. Morgan employs such funds in a variety of financial instruments including, but not limited to, loans to J.P. Morgan's customers and investment securities. Any remaining funds are held in J.P. Morgan's account with the Federal Reserve Bank, where such funds earn interest at a rate determined from time to time by the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank System. With respect to non-US dollar accounts, where J.P. Morgan is a direct member of the local monetary system, J.P. Morgan may invest such funds in a variety of financial instruments or may leave such funds on deposit with the local central bank, where such funds earn interest in accordance with local market practice. Where the J.P. Morgan is not a direct member of the local system, funds are held at local subcustodian banks and, depending on the market in question, J.P. Morgan may earn interest at rates offered by such local subcustodian. Earnings Credit Rate (ECR)	Under the ECR program, eligible accounts holding un-invested cash will generate a credit (Earnings Credit) that can be used to reduce the amount of direct service fees the customer is required to pay J.P. Morgan. The amount of credit is based on a rate, the ECR, set periodically by J.P. Morgan after considering a range of factors, including, but not limited to: (i) the market rate environment, (ii) deposit insurance fees, (iii) relevant competitor pricing; and (iv) J.P. Morgan's demand for funds. On days during which the relevant account(s) end the day in a positive cash balance, J.P. Morgan will calculate the Earnings Credit using the following formula: closing cash balance on that business day x the ECR rate/ Number of days in the year. J.P. Morgan will apply the Earnings Credit, if any, towards the customer's custody fees. Depending on the account analysis platform, Earnings Credits may expire at the end of the billing cycle or at the end of a calendar year, unless otherwise explicitly and mutually agreed by the customer and J.P. Morgan. For more information see the applicable agreements and disclosures you received prior to electing ECR (and any amendments or notices you may receive thereafter). You may request a more detailed description of ECR, including current rates, from your J.P. Morgan Client Service Manager at any time.	Indirect	JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A.	J.P. Interest Bearing Account	The Interest Bearing Account provides participating clients with the ability to earn interest based on the available cash balances that are held in their applicable account(s). The rate of interest is set periodically by J.P. Morgan after considering a range of factors, including, but not limited to: (i) the market rate environment; (ii) deposit insurance fees, (iii) relevant competitor pricing; and (iv) J.P. Morgan's demand for funds. On days during which the interest bearing account(s) end the day in a positive cash balance, J.P. Morgan will calculate interest using the following formula: Available cash closing balance of that business day x the interest rate/ number of days in the year.	Indirect	JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A. Overdraft (Overdraft Fees)	The advance, by J.P. Morgan, of an amount equal to the amount of any overdraft in a customer's account if a debit to any currency in the customer's account results in a debit balance. If J.P. Morgan elects to make such an advance, it will be deemed a loan to the customer, payable on demand, bearing interest at the applicable rate charged by J.P. Morgan. Back-value dated transactions may result in Overdraft fees if the account debited did not have a sufficient closing balance on the specified value date or on each subsequent day. Fees for each day the account is overdrawn will be billed at the agreed-upon Overdraft rate.	Direct	N/A	For U.S. based accounts, U.S. dollar overdrafts are currently charged at the Federal Funds Effective rate plus 2%. For non-U.S. based accounts there are 3 categories of overdraft charges. For specifically identified currencies in respect of which the overdraft rate is linked to an external benchmark, the overdraft rate is the external benchmark plus a fixed basis point amount. For specifically identified frequently traded currencies in respect of which an external benchmark is not used by J.P. Morgan, the overdraft rate is a flat number of basis points. For all other currencies, the overdraft rate is a flat number of basis points, subject to change depending on the rate offered by the local sub custodian bank that J.P. Morgan engages in such market. For a limited number of currencies that are not treasury managed or limited movement due to regulation, the overdraft rate is 0 basis points. A chart specifically identifying the rate charged for each currency is included in the current relevant compensation disclosure document. Pay To Hold (PTH) Compensation	J.P. Morgan as an agent enables Borrowers to ‘hold’ securities of interest to them in exchange for a fee. The hold gives the Borrower the first right of refusal to borrow the stock, however, it is NOT a guarantee of a subsequent Loan. The booked PTH remains in the lender’s custody and is not delivered to the Borrower during the Hold period. As the PTH does not constitute a guarantee of a subsequent loan there is no impact to the client’s right to sell during the Pay to Hold period.	Indirect	N/A	PTH fees will be included on existing borrower billing invoices with additional details regarding PTH fees in order to provide necessary transparency.
